A CAVE'S CURIOUS SECRET.

What Two Hunters Discovered in a Carern Among the Sterra Nevndas. On Wednesday, while hunting and fishing in the nountains on the other side of the Summit, Nevada, off to the left of Humboldt road, Charley Briggs and Frank McCoy discovered a cave, in which were discovered the skeleton of a man and a deg. Undoubtedly this hole in the mountains a dog. Undoubtedly this hole in the mountains had been the home of the man, who was doubtless a hermit. The skelcton of the dog was securely fastened to the wall by a chain, which was locked around his neck. He had evidently been the sole companion of his master, and had died with him. The bones of the man were lying on some pine boughs in the darkest corner of the place. By his side was a revolver of a curious make, which was roat-enten and worthless. With this weapon the man had doubtless destroyed his life, as there was a large builet-hole through the center of the forehead. A plain gold ring, worn almost as thin as paper, was upon the little finger of the right hand. The inside bore the littlads, "C. E. T. to M. L. R.," and upon the but of the revolver were also the letters "C. E. T." These letters, perhaps, stood for "C. E. Thomas," which was found cut in the rocks at the entrance of the cave. In one corner of the cave were some mining implements, an old, long-barreled squirrei rifle, and a camp-kettle and frying-lan.—Chicago Record.

Ministerial Johes.

When Dr. Chapin was dining at a hotel he was served with what was called barley soup on the bill of fare. "That is not barley soup," said he to the waiter; "it is barely soup." On another occasion, while traveling in the South with his occasion, while traveling in the South with his wife, who was uncommonly dark complexiened, he addressed an old colored man as "uncle." "How happens it," said his wife, reguishly, "that that colored man is your uncle?" "He is my uncle by marriage, I suppose." He once asked his daughter, who was also a pronounced brunette, and very small: "Marion, why are you like a certain Boston book-publishing house!" "I give it up, faither," said she. "Because you are little and brown," was the answer.
